Overview

Chapter I. Overview

The Park Geun-hye administration of South Korea (ROK: the Republic of Korea) has endeavored to resolve pending issues through dialogue between the South and North, while firmly responding to North Korean provocations by consistently maintaining its stance on the Trust-Building Process on the Korean Peninsula.

Based on these efforts, a total of 13 inter-Korean talks (six political and military talks, four economic talks, and three humanitarian and sociocultural talks) were held during 2014 and 2015.

Through the New Year's presidential press conference (January 6, 2014), the South Korean government proposed taking the occasion of Seollal (Lunar New Year's Day) to hold a reunion for families separated by the Korean War, and sent a note the same day proposing that an inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting be held to discuss preparations. However, in a proposal released by North Korea's National Defense Commission on January 16, North Korea (DPRK: Democratic People's Republic of Korea) demanded the cessation of both ROK-US joint military exercises and "slander" as preconditions for taking measures to improve inter-Korean relations. In response, South Korea clarified that the ROK-US joint military exercise was an annual defensive training exercise and that the South did not engage in slander of North Korea.

On January 24, the fourth meeting of the Joint Subcommittee for Commuting, Communications, and Customs (3Cs) for the Gaeseong Industrial Complex (GIC) was held, at which the two Koreas neared agreement in regard to regular daily commuting. On February 5, at an inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting, the two sides agreed to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Seollal.

However, on February 6, through a statement issued by the spokesperson for North Korea's National Defense Commission, the North warned that it would be difficult to implement the agreement on the reunion for separated families without first resolving the defamation issue. Expressing regret at this stance, South Korea urged the North to implement the agreement. Inter-Korean high-level meeting was then held on February 12 and 14, where the two Koreas agreed not to slander each other and to promote the reunion for separated families as planned. In accordance with this agreement, the reunion for separated families took place at Mt. Geumgang from February 25 to 30.

Immediately after the inter-Korean high-level meeting, however, North Korea heightened military tension by firing ballistic missiles. In a response to a news reporter by the spokesperson for the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland (CPRF) on February 27, as well as in a statement released by the spokesperson for the North Korean delegation to the Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting on March 11, the North criticized the South, claiming that statements related to North Korea's nuclear weapons released by the president and other government officials of South Korea constituted a "violation of the agreement on the cessation of slander." South Korea responded by expressing displeasure and urging the North to stop criticizing the president and government of the South.

On March 13, the first meeting for the operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission for the Gaeseong Industrial Complex was held, but the two Koreas merely exchanged opinions and were unable to reach an agreement.

After this meeting, in a public written inquiry issued by the CPRF on April 23 and a special proposal made by North Korea's National Defense Commission on June 30, the North reiterated its demands for the cessation of ROK-US military exercises and "slander." South Korea refuted these unilateral and unreasonable demands and took resolute measures accordingly.

On May 23, North Korea officially notified the Olympic Council of Asia of its intention to participate in the 17th Incheon Asian Games. In a 'government statement' on July 7, the North announced that a cheering squad would also be dispatched. On July 10, in a letter from the chairman of its Olympic Committee, the North offered to hold an inter-Korean working-level meeting. On July 17, such a meeting did indeed take place to discuss North Korea's participation in the games, but due to North Korea's unilateral decision to terminate the negotiations, it ended without agreement. Later, through the liaison channel at Panmunjeom, the South and North agreed on practical issues related to the latter's participation in the games. A total of 273 North Korean athletes and staff took part in the Incheon Asian Games held from September 19 to October 4.

On August 11 South Korea, maintaining its consistent stance that pending issues should be resolved through dialogue, proposed holding the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting on August 19 to discuss issues related to both parties, such as holding a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok (Korea's Thanksgiving Day).

However, a statement released by the CPRF on August 14 contained no response to South Korea's proposal; instead it urged the South to change its stance towards North Korea.

On October 3, a day before the closing ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games, an official in the North's delegation to the Asian games notified South Korea that high-level North Korean officials, including Hwang Pyong-so, the Director of the General Politics Bureau of the Korea People's Army (KPA), and Choe Ryong-hae and Kim Yang-gon, both Secretaries of the Workers' Party, would participate in the closing ceremony. Accordingly, on October 4, Inter-Korean High-Level Talks on the occasion of the Incheon Asian Games took place. The two sides agreed to hold, at some time between late October and early November, the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting that the South had proposed.

However, on October 7, North Korea provoked the South by violating the Northern Limit Line (NLL). Then, under the pretext of rectifying this matter, North Korea proposed an urgent inter-Korean meeting. When the Inter-Korean Military Authorities' Meeting was held on October 15, North Korea demanded the cessation of "slander" and the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations. In response, South Korea maintained its consistent position that the ROK government could not restrict private sector activities, and the meeting ended without any agreement.

In accordance with the agreement made at the Inter-Korean High-Level Talks held on the occasion of the closing ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games, South Korea proposed, on October 13, the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting. It did not, however, take place, because the North demanded the cessation of anti-DPRK leaflet disseminations by private organizations as a precondition for such meetings. Expressing its disappointment, South Korea urged the North to change its position.

On December 29, South Korea's Presidential Committee for Unification Preparation proposed further South-North dialogue. On January 6, 2015, through a statement by the spokesman for the Ministry of Unification, South Korea again urged North Korea to agree to hold "inter-Korean dialogue without regard to formalities."

However, on January 7, 2015, in a statement by the spokesman for the National Defense Commission, North Korea demanded that South Korea clarify its position on ROK-US military exercises, the unification of the two systems, the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets, and competition between political ideologies. The North argued that such a clarification was a prerequisite for improving inter-Korean relations, and continued repeating this claim without responding to South Korea's proposal for inter-Korean dialogue.

South Korea clearly pointed out the injustice of North Korea's claims on every major occasion and urged the North to respond to its proposal that it enter into South-North dialogue.

In July, North Korea relented, and the Sixth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC was held. However, the meeting ended without agreement due to the difference in positions between the two parties.

At the beginning of August, South-North relations took on a new aspect. Amidst military tensions heightened by North Korea's wooden-box landmine provocation on August 4 and its firing on loudspeakers on August 20, North Korea urgently proposed an inter-Korean meeting. From August 22 to 24, an Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' meeting was held at Panmunjeom. During the talks, the North explicitly expressed regret about its landmine provocation, and the two parties agreed to activate inter-Korean dialogue and non-governmental exchanges.

In the second half of 2015, the two Koreas undertook to implement the agreement reached at the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting. From September 7 to 8, an inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting was held, resulting in both sides' agreement to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok. From October 20 to 26, the reunion took place at Mt. Geumgang. On November 26, at the working-level meeting preparing for Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks, the South and North agreed to have the First Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks, at which the chief delegate of each side would be a vice-ministerial level official. At the First Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks held in Gaeseong from December 11 to 12, the South and North exchanged opinions on pending issues about inter-Korean relations, such as the resolution of the issue of separated families. However, the North insisted that the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism should be a prerequisite for further discussion, and the meeting ended without agreement.

From 2014 to 2015, North Korea showed its inconsistency by veering back and forth between provocation and dialogue, which effected repeated swings inside South-North dialogue itself. After provoking the South, North Korea usually proposed urgent meetings, as if intent on resolving the situation through dialogue. But once dialogue began, it would provoke South Korea again and criticize the South Korean government. This repeatedly strained South-North relations and led to the cessation of dialogue.

While exhibiting a negative attitude towards dialogue, the North reacted defensively to loudspeaker broadcasting and the dissemination of leaflets by private organizations as well as to South Korean official statements and press reports regarding human rights and denuclearization in North Korea. Rejecting the North’s unreasonable demands, the South Korean government explained that it could not control the activities of either the media or the private sector. Responding resolutely to the demand for the cessation of ROK-US military exercises, South Korea consistently emphasized that the ROK-US military exercise was an annual defensive training exercise.

Chapter II. Inter-Korean Political Dialogue

1. Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting (Feb. 12 and 14, 2014)

A. Overview

In 2014, President Park Geun-hye of South Korea (ROK) stressed the urgency and importance of resolving the separated families issue at the New Year's press conference, and the government proposed an inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting on January 6. However, North Korea rejected South Korea's proposal, citing through a note on January 9 the need for the cessation of ROK-US joint military exercises. In a statement issued by the spokesperson for the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland (CPRF) on January 15 and the critical proposal made by the National Defense Commission on January 16, the North again demanded the cessation of ROK-US joint military exercises and mutual slander.

Later, after consultation between the two Koreas, an inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting was held on February 5, and the South and North agreed to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Seollal (Lunar New Year's Day) from February 20 to 25. However, on February 6, the next day of the working-level meeting, North Korea warned through a statement by the spokesperson for the National Defense Commission that implementing the agreement on the reunion for separated families would be difficult unless the slander issue was resolved. South Korea expressed disappointment at this and urged North Korea to implement the agreement.

On February 8, North Korea sent an urgent note proposing an Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting, which South Korea accepted. That Meeting took place at the Peace House in Panmunjeom on February 12 and 14.

Five South Korean delegates participated, including First Deputy Director of the National Security Office Kim Kyou-hyun as head delegate and other officials from the Blue House (Cheong Wa Dae), Ministry of Unification and Ministry of National Defense. North Korea was likewise represented by five delegates, including Deputy Director of the United Front Department Won Dong-yeon as head delegate and other officials from the National Defense Commission.

Delegates	Hong Yong-pyo (Secretary to the President for Unification) Bae Kwang-bog (Director General, Ministry of Unification: MOU) Kim Do-kyun (Director, Ministry of National Defense) Son Jae-rak (Director General, Office of the Prime Minister)	Jon Jong-su (Deputy Director, Secretariat of the CPRF) Kim Sung-hye (Senior Official, Secretariat of the CPRF) Lee Sun-kwon (Senior Official for Policy, Secretariat of the National Defense Commission) Park Ki-yong (Senior Official, Secretariat of the National Defense Commission)

B. Progress of the Meeting

1) The First Meeting (Feb. 12)

At the First Inter-Korean Meeting, the South and North had a total of four sessions (two plenary and two head delegate sessions). South Korea explained the Trust-Building Process on the Korean Peninsula and urged North Korea to consider the issues of a reunion for separated families on Seollal and regular reunions for separated families.

The South emphasized that the implementation of the planned reunion for separated families was the first step towards improving inter-Korean relations. It also stressed that both Koreas should build trust with each other by carrying out that reunion as agreed upon.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- The reunion for separated families on Seollal should be held as agreed, and the issues of regular family reunions and the confirmation of the status (living or deceased) of family members for separated families should also be resolved.
- The Trust-Building Process on the Korean Peninsula refers to the two Koreas establishing trust through basic cooperation, which will lead to improvement in inter-Korean relations.
  - Sharing South Korea's experience in agriculture and the livestock industry and promoting businesses can restore ethno-national harmony between the South and North.
  - Planning of the DMZ World Eco-Peace Park and the Eurasia Railroad should be undertaken.
- The denuclearization of North Korea is required for the proper improvement of inter-Korean relations.

North Korea demanded that South Korea cease its “slander” and military “hostilities” for the improvement of inter-Korean relations. It also linked the reunion issue to ROK-US joint military exercises by demanding that the Key Resolve and the Foal Eagle military exercises due to begin on February 24 be postponed until after the reunion for separated families.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- North Korea hopes that this meeting will provide crucial momentum for the improvement of inter-Korean relations in the future.
- Due to the continuous military exercises of the South, inter-Korean relations are facing difficulties and the reunion for separate families is experiencing crisis.
  - Slander between the North and South and large-scale war exercises should cease.

However, the South repeatedly emphasized its firm stance that South Korea could not accept North Korea's demand because linking the reunions for separated families and ROK-US joint military exercises was tantamount to linking purely humanitarian issues with military matters.

The North insisted that the South Korean government control the press, with a special view to media reports on the "supreme dignity" and political ideology of North Korea, but the South clarified that it would be impossible for the government to do so. The South and North decided to continue the discussion after exchanging opinions on mutual interests, and the meeting was adjourned.

2) The Second Meeting (Feb. 14)

At the second meeting, the South repeatedly explained the Trust-Building Process on the Korean Peninsula and stressed that the reunion for separated families should take place as planned.

Comprehensive Summary of South Korea's Statement

- The military exercises of South Korea are annual defensive training exercises.
  - The reunion for separated families, which is a humanitarian issue, cannot be linked with military matters.
- If inter-Korean trust is built, based on the reunion for separated families, South Korea can promote endeavors beneficial to both the South and North.

Comprehensive Summary of North Korea's Statement

- Humanitarian matters and military matters can never be regarded separately.
- The direction of North-South relations should be clarified.
  - The resolution of the family reunion issue is by itself insufficient for a fundamental improvement in inter-Korean relations.

Through discussions, the two sides agreed to proceed with the reunion for separated families as planned and cease mutual slandering in order to improve inter-Korean relations and increase mutual trust. The two Koreas also agreed to continuously discuss mutual interests through Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting in the future. The outline of this agreement was announced in the form of a joint statement.

Summary of Joint Statement

- The South and North agreed to hold a reunion for separated families as scheduled.
- The South and North agreed not to slander each other in order to promote mutual understanding and trust.
- The South and North agreed to continuously discuss issues of mutual interest and strive to improve inter-Korean relations.
  - The South and North agreed to hold an Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting at a mutually convenient date.

C. Results and Trends

The South Korean media reported that “the First Inter-Korean High-Level Talks were beneficial” and the South and North “took the first step toward mutual trust.”<sup>1</sup> It also made the evaluation that “President of South Korea Park Geun-hye and First Chairman of the National Defense Commission of North Korea Kim Jong-un seem to have reached an agreement.”<sup>2</sup>

Under the agreement reached between the South and North, a reunion for separated families was held at Mt. Geumgang from February 20 to 25.

Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting (Feb. 12 and 14, 2014)

However, North Korea escalated military tension by firing short-range ballistic missiles on February 21 and during March 3~4. The North also asserted that statements related to human rights in North Korea released by the South Korean government and the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations were a violation of the agreement on the cessation of slander. In response, the South Korean government expressed disagreement, reiterating that it could not restrict the activities of private organizations and that in compliance with the Inter-Korean Agreement, it had not slandered North Korea. However, the North responded with a statement issued on March 29 by the spokesperson for the North Korean delegation for the Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting that fiercely criticized the South Korean president for the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations. It also threatened South Korea, using the expressions such as “home of provocations,” “heap of ashes” and “sea of fire.”

Through a public written inquiry issued by the CPRF on April 23 and a special proposal made by the National Defense Commission on June 30, North Korea again demanded the cessation of ROK-US joint military exercises and “slander,” and the abolition of South Korea’s National Security Law. In resolute response, South Korea clarified that ROK-US joint military exercises were an annual defensive training exercise, urged North Korea to cease repeating unilateral arguments, and encouraged it to participate in inter-Korean dialogue at the earliest possible date.

2. Inter-Korean High-Level Talks on the Occasion of the Closing Ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games (Oct. 4, 2014)

A. Overview

The South and North agreed to have a subsequent meeting at the Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting in February 2014. However, North Korea’s launching of short-range ballistic missiles and criticism of the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations strained inter-Korean relations. Accordingly, the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting could not take place.

On August 11, South Korea again proposed that the two Koreas hold the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting on August 19 to discuss mutual interests, including the issue of a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok (Korean Thanksgiving Day). In response, through a statement released by the CPRF on August 14, North Korea demanded changes in South Korean policy towards North Korea without responding to South Korea’s proposal for inter-Korean dialogue. Through the presidential speech commemorating Liberation Day on August 15 and a statement issued by the spokesperson for the Ministry of Unification on August 18, South Korea repeatedly urged North Korea to enter into inter-Korean dialogue.

Although the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting did not take place, the South and North agreed, through the Panmunjeom liaison channel, on practical matters related to the participation of the North Korean team in the 17th Incheon Asian Games. Subsequently, a total of 273 North Korean athletes and staff in 14 sporting events participated in the Incheon Asian Games held from September 19 to October 4.

On October 3, a day before the closing ceremony, through a North Korean official participating in the Asian Games, North Korea delivered its intention to send high-ranking officials, including Hwang Pyong-so, Director of the General Politics Bureau of the KPA, and Choe Ryong-hae and Kim Yang-gon, Secretaries of the Workers' Party, to the closing ceremony of the Games. The South accepted this offer, and Inter-Korean High-Level Talks were held on October 4 in Incheon between the South Korean delegation and the North Korean delegation visiting South Korea to attend the closing ceremony of the Asian Games.

List of South and North Korean Delegates

Classification	South Korean Delegation	North Korean Delegation
Delegates	Kim Kwan-jin (Director of the National Security Office) Ryoo Kihl-jae (Minister of Unification) Kim Nam-sik (Vice Minister of Unification) Kim Kyou-hyun (First Deputy Director, National Security Office) Hong Yong-pyo (Secretary to the President for Unification) Kim Ki-woong (Assistant Minister for Unification Policy, MOU) Chun Hae-sung (Assistant Minister for Inter-Korean Dialogue, MOU)	Hwang Pyong-so (Director of the General Politics Bureau of the KPA) Choe Ryong-hae (Secretary of the Workers' Party) Kim Yang-gon (Secretary of the Workers' Party) Kim Yong-hun (Head of the Ministry of Physical Culture and Sports) Son Kwang-ho (Vice Chairman of North Korean Olympic Committee)

B. Progress of the Meeting

At the beginning of the Inter-Korean High-Level Talks, the North Korean delegation conveyed greetings from First Chairman of the National Defense Commission Kim Jong-un to the president of South Korea. At the Talks, the two sides agreed on the need for the resumption of inter-Korean dialogue and to hold between late October and early November the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting, which South Korea had proposed on August 11. The two Koreas also agreed to have practical discussions on the details for the meeting.

After the Talks, the North Korean delegation also had face-to-face talks with the South Korean prime minister as well as with members of the governing and opposition parties. At the face-to-face talks with the prime minister, Hwang Pyong-so, Director of the General Politics Bureau of the KPA, said, “We cleared a small path this time, but let us pave a great road in the future.” After attending the closing ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games, the North Korean delegation departed on the same day through Incheon International Airport.

Inter-Korean High-Level Talks on the Occasion of the Closing Ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games (Oct. 4, 2014)

C. Results and Trends

The Inter-Korean High-Level Talks on the occasion of the closing ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games drew national and international attention. The press perceived it as “North Korea’s surprise to underscore its team’s athletic prowess” and “escape from isolation.” At the same time, it expressed hopes for future inter-Korean relations, reporting that the athletes “came with the will to talk” and “conveyed greetings to the president.”<sup>3</sup> The North Korean media also reported the high-level delegation visit to Incheon, saying that “the delegates for national reconciliation from Pyongyang went to South Korea, and this cultivated an opportunity to improve North-South relations.”<sup>4</sup>

However, immediately after the Talks, the North provoked the South. On October 7, a North Korean coast guard vessel crossed the Northern Limit Line (NLL) in the West Sea, and, on October 10, North Korea shot down balloons containing anti-DPRK leaflets disseminated by South Korean private organizations and the falling bullets caused damage to a South Korean area.

Nevertheless, on October 13, the South Korean government proposed the holding of the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting on October 30 in accordance with the agreement from the Inter-Korean High-Level Talks on October 4 but North Korea did not respond to this proposal.

Through a note sent on October 26, North Korea criticized the South Korean government for overlooking the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by private organizations on October 25. Through a note sent on October 27, South Korea clarified that there would be no change in its position on the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by private organizations and urged the North to clearly express its position on South Korea's October 13 proposal for the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting. However, through a note sent on October 29, North Korea listed the cessation of the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations as a precondition for the Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting.

The Ministry of Unification spokesperson expressed displeasure on October 29 over the increasing difficulty of holding the Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting due to North Korea's insistence on the cessation of the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets as a prerequisite for inter-Korean dialogue, and urged North Korea to change its position.

South Korea constantly strove to build trust between the two Koreas and improve inter-Korean relations through South-North dialogue. On December 29, South Korea's Presidential Committee for Unification Preparation again suggested inter-Korean dialogue. On January 6, 2015, through a statement by the spokesperson for the Ministry of Unification, South Korea urged the North to participate in "an inter-Korean dialogue without insisting on formalities."

However, through a statement released by the spokesperson for the National Defense Commission on January 7, 2015, North Korea demanded that South Korea clarify its position on the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets, ROK-US joint military exercises, unification of the two systems, and competition between political ideologies. The North stated that these were preconditions for improving inter-Korean relations. Such demands continued for a considerable period. North Korea repeated its position through a 'government statement,' National Defense Commission and CPRF statement, without responding to South Korea's proposal for inter-Korean dialogue.

3. Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting (Aug. 22~24, 2015)

A. Overview

On August 4, 2015, within the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in a South Korean area along the Military Demarcation Line (MDL) in Paju, Gyeonggi-do, two soldiers were injured by landmines. A joint field investigation between the Combat Readiness Inspection team of South Korea's Ministry of National Defense and the special inspection team of the UNC Military Armistice Commission determined that North Korean soldiers illegally entered the MDL and intentionally buried wooden-box landmines. On August 10, the South Korean government announced the investigation results and urged North Korea both to apologize and to punish the officials responsible. At 5 pm on that day near the MDL, South Korea commenced loudspeaker broadcasting into North Korea.

Through a statement released by the National Defense Commission on August 14 and a public warning issued by the (North) Korean People's Army (KPA) Front Command on August 15, North Korea denied that it had buried landmines in the DMZ and threatened to fire at the loudspeakers unless South Korea ceased its broadcasts. On August 20, the North Korean army fired at South Korean loudspeakers and declared a virtual state of war in the frontal zone. On that day, North Korea sent an ultimatum via the General Staff Department of the KPA to the Ministry of National Defense in South Korea demanding that "unless South Korea ceases psychological warfare broadcasting within 48 hours and completely removes the broadcasting equipment, North Korea will initiate strong military actions that could lead to war.”

On the same day, North Korea also sent a note from Kim Yang-gon, Secretary of the Workers’ Party, insisting that the resumption of psychological warfare broadcasting was in essence a declaration of war. It also said that North Korea was willing to help remedy the current situation and find a way to improve inter-Korean relations. On August 21, North Korea sent another note, again from Kim Yang-gon, proposing a meeting between him and the Director of the National Security Office of South Korea. The South replied, requesting the additional participation of Hwang Pyong-so, Director of the General Politics Bureau of the KPA. On August 22, after more discussions through written notes, the two Koreas agreed to hold, at 6 pm on that day at the Peace House in Panmunjeom, an Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities’ Meeting, at which the South was represented by Kim Kwan-jin, Director of the National Security Office, and Hong Yong-pyo, Minister of Unification, while the North was represented by Hwang Pyong-so, Director of the General Politics Bureau of the KPA, and Kim Yang-gon, Secretary of the Workers’ Party.

B. Progress of the Meeting

1) The First Meeting (Aug. 22~23)

At the first plenary meeting held on August 22, each side expressed its respective position on the recent situation through their opening remarks.

Summary of South Korea's Opening Remarks

- The current situation resulted from North Korea's provocation through its burying wooden-box landmines, and loudspeaker broadcasting by South Korea was a reasonable response.
  - However, the North neither admitted nor apologized, but instead fired artillery.
- South Korea cannot tolerate any armed provocation. South Korea demands that the North admit and apologize for its provocation, punish responsible officials and take measures to prevent any recurrence.

Summary of North Korea's Opening Remarks

- Tension is building in the Bungyeyeonseon (Military Demarcation Line) area.
- North Korea demands that South Korea immediately cease its psychological warfare broadcasting.

The South consistently demanded that, in order to remedy the tense situation, the North assume responsibility for its landmine provocation in the DMZ and its strike against South Korean loudspeakers. Only the resolution of this issue, it explained, could ease tension and produce practical progress in inter-Korean relations and urged the North to show a sincere attitude.

The North denied its provocation and insisted that South should cease loudspeaker broadcasting in order to remedy the developing situation.

Having begun as scheduled at 6 pm on August 22, the meeting continued until the morning of August 23. In the afternoon of that day, the two sides agreed to have a subsequent discussion and adjourned the first meeting.

Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting (Aug. 22~24, 2015)

2) Second Meeting (Aug. 23~24)

Intense negotiations between the South and North continued at the second meeting. The North continued to deny its provocation and demanded the cessation of loudspeaker broadcasting by South Korea. The South presented clear evidence and firmly maintained its stance that no more provocation could be tolerated.

Although there were conflicts in opinions between the two sides throughout the meeting, the two Koreas adopted the following joint statement.

First, the North explicitly expressed regret for its landmine provocation and the South agreed to cease its loudspeaker broadcasting so long as abnormal situations do not occur. In addition, for the improvement of inter-Korean relations, the South and North agreed to hold Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks as well as to have discussions and negotiations on various issues of mutual concern.

The two Koreas also agreed to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok and activate non-governmental exchanges in various areas.

Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting (Aug. 22~24, 2015)

Summary of Joint Statement

- The South and North agreed to hold Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks in Seoul or Pyongyang as soon as possible and have discussions and negotiations on diverse issues for the improvement of inter-Korean relations.
- The North expressed regret for injuries suffered by South Korean soldiers in the landmine explosion that occurred in the DMZ in the South Korean area near the MDL.
- The South will cease loudspeaker broadcasting near the MDL from 12 pm on August 25 as long as abnormal situations do not occur.
- The North will withdraw its declaration of a virtual state of war.
- The two Koreas agreed to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok and will continue to arrange family reunions in the future. An inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting will be held for this in early September.
- Non-governmental exchanges will be activated in various areas between the South and North.

C. Results and Trends

Through the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Talks, the South and North were able to ease tension and prepare for the improvement of inter-Korean relations. The international community as well as the South Korean general public expressed support.<sup>5</sup> North Korea also evaluated

<sup>5</sup> UN Statement, August 22, 2015: "A welcome to hold an inter-Korean high-level authorities' meeting"

Politics Poll by Gallup Korea, August 28, 2015: "66% of respondents were positive about this agreement through an announcement in the media immediately afterward and expressed its intention to implement the agreement.<sup>6</sup>

The Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting was significant in that, by applying its military principle of responding resolutely to provocations, the South led North Korea to change its attitude and admit and apologize for its landmine provocation. It was also significant in that measures to prevent the recurrence of such provocations were undertaken. In addition, South Korea clarified that its loudspeaker broadcasting towards the North was a reasonable response to the provocation. South Korea also prepared grounds to resume loudspeaker broadcasting should any abnormal situations occur, namely provocations from North Korea.

The agreement to hold subsequent Authorities' Talks, sectoral discussions and negotiations also laid the foundation for making substantial progress to resolve pending issues between the South and North. In particular, the agreement on the reunion for separated families during Chuseok and the activation of non-governmental exchanges was a significant achievement.

Immediately after concluding an agreement at the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting, North Korea withdrew its declaration of a virtual state of war and South Korea ceased loudspeaker broadcasting. An inter-Korean Red Cross working-level meeting took place from

First Chairman Kim Jong-un, at the extended Central Military Commission meeting, August 28, 2015: "It provided crucial momentum for reconciliation and mutual trust between the two Koreas. We should cherish this agreement and achieve a favorable outcome."

September 7 to 8 and the South and North agreed to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok from October 20 to 26. Non-governmental exchanges in the fields of public welfare, environment, and culture were also actively promoted. An exhibition of excavated relics from Manwoldae was held in Seoul and Gaeseong, and the U-15 International Youth Football Tournament and football match between workers from the South and North were held in Pyongyang.

4. The 1st Inter-Korean Vice-Ministerial Level Talks

A. Working-Level Meeting for the Inter-Korean Vice-Ministerial Level Talks (Nov. 26, 2015)

1) Overview

In accordance with the agreement made at the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting, the South Korean government sent a note from the Minister of Unification to Secretary of the Workers' Party Kim Yang-gon on September 21 and proposed a preliminary meeting to discuss the holding of Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks.

However, in a note released by the Secretariat of the CPRF on September 23, North Korea argued that it was doubtful as to whether the South was sincere about the preliminary meeting, given the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets, comments on the need for a Human Rights Act in North Korea, and spreading of "rumors" regarding North Korean provocations.

Through a response sent on September 24, the South Korean government repeatedly emphasized that the agreement from the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities’ Meeting should be fulfilled in good faith and urged North Korea to accept its proposal for the preliminary meeting.

On October 30, the South Korean government tried to deliver another written note to North Korea suggesting a preliminary meeting for the Inter-Korean Authorities’ Talks, but the North refused to accept it. Later, on November 20, North Korea sent a note from the Secretariat of the CPRF to the Ministry of Unification of South Korea proposing a working-level meeting to discuss the Inter-Korean Authorities’ Talks on November 26 at Tongilgak in Panmunjeom. The South having accepted this proposal, a working-level meeting for the Inter-Korean Authorities’ Talks took place on November 26.

Delegates	Kim Chung-hwan (Director General, MOU) Son Jae-rak (Director General, Office of the Prime Minister)	Kim Myeong-Cheol (CPRF) Kim Chol Yong (CPRF)

2) Progress of the Meeting

The South and North discussed procedural issues for the holding the First Inter-Korean Authorities’ Talks.

The delegation for the Talks was to be led by a vice-ministerial level official and the number of delegates determined at each side's convenience.

Regarding the agenda, South Korea expressed its position that since the Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks would be a channel for broad discussion of various issues affecting inter-Korean relations, its agenda should also be comprehensive. North Korea took the position that the agenda should be concretely stated. Responding to South Korea's emphasis on the need for a fundamental resolution of the separated family issue, the North counter-claimed that the issue of Mt. Geumgang tourism was an urgent one.

Through these discussions, the two sides adopted a joint statement at the working-level meeting for the Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks.

Summary of Joint Statement

- The First Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks will be held at the Gaeseong Industrial Complex (GIC) on December 11, 2015.
  - The delegation for the talks will be led by a vice-ministerial level official and the number of delegates will be determined at each side's convenience.
  - The agenda of the talks will be pending issues for the improvement of inter-Korean relations.
- Other practical issues will be discussed through the liaison office in Panmunjeom.

3) Results and Trends

The South Korean press assessed this meeting as “the first step towards the restoration of inter-Korean dialogue.”<sup>7</sup> It reported that South Korea should thoroughly prepare for the Inter-Korean Authorities’ Talks to promote the practical improvement of inter-Korean relations.<sup>8</sup>

2) Progress of the Meeting

The South participated in the Talks in order to improve inter-Korean relations by implementing the agreement made at the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting. South Korea delivered its stance on pending issues regarding inter-Korean relations to North Korea.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- Faithful implementation of the agreement of August 25 is necessary for the improvement of inter-Korean relations.
- Resolving the issues of the confirmation of the status (living or deceased) of separated family members, regular reunions for separated families, and individuals missing during or after the Korean War is necessary.
- Non-governmental exchanges in various fields, such as sports, culture, environment, forestry, and agricultural cooperation, should be expanded.
- Resolving issues regarding DMZ World Eco-Peace Park promotion and GIC commuting, communications, and customs is also necessary.
- For the continuous improvement of inter-Korean relations, the North Korean nuclear issue should be resolved. South Korea hopes for a virtuous cycle progressing the improvement of inter-Korean relations and the denuclearization of North Korea.

The South proffered a fundamental resolution of outstanding issues, i.e., separated families, which in turn includes such matters as the exchange of correspondence, and confirmation as to whether missing family members are living or deceased; establishment of inter-Korean communications in the fields of environment, public welfare, and culture, creation of the DMZ World Eco-Peace Park, and resolution of the commuting, communications, and customs of the GIC, as the most urgent task to be addressed.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- For improvement of inter-Korean relations, 'creation of a positive atmosphere' is most urgent.
- Urgent pending issues between North and South are the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism and the separated families issue. Complying with North Korea's political principle of simultaneous promotion and implementation, North Korea proposes that an inter-Korean working-level meeting for Mt. Geumgang tourism and inter-Korean Red Cross Talks be held simultaneously, and that the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism and the reunion for separated families take place simultaneously later.

However, the North stressed the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism as an urgent pending issue. North Korea linked the two issues of Mt. Geumgang tourism and reunion for separated families, arguing that they should be simultaneously promoted and implemented. The North demanded that South Korea agree to the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism first.

In response, South Korea stressed that it is inappropriate to link such different issues as the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism and the reunion for separated families, which is a humanitarian issue. In addition, South Korea said that the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism would require that North Korea first take responsible measures to ensure the personal safety of tourists, and prevent the recurrence of tourism-related incidents affecting safety and restoration of South Korean property rights in relation to Mt. Geumgang tourism. Accordingly, South Korea proposed an inter-Korean working-level talk for Mt. Geumgang tourism to discuss these issues.

However, the North did not respond to South Korea's proposal for an inter-Korean working-level talk, adhering to its stance that other matters, including the separated families issue, could not be discussed until the issue of the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism was resolved.

(Dec. 11~12, 2015)

Originally planned as a one-day event on December 11, it continued until the next day, December 12. However, the two sides failed to narrow the gap between their positions, and the talks ended even without a determination of the next meeting.

3) Results and Trends

After the Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks, through a statement issued by the spokesperson for the CPRF on December 15, North Korea criticized South Korea, claiming it was responsible for the rupture of the First Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks.<sup>9</sup>

Immediately after the Inter-Korean Authorities' Talks, through a briefing by the head delegate, the South Korean government clarified that there would be no change in its basic position that inter-Korean relations could only be improved through South-North dialogue and cooperation, and that South Korea would continuously lay the foundation for peaceful unification. However, South Korea made it clear that, in this process, it would promote inter-Korean dialogue while observing important rules. It also urged North Korea to seriously consider its proposal and enter into inter-Korean talks in the future.

The South Korean media pointed out that the talks had been broken off due to the North's exclusive focus on the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism, but the tone of commentary implied that inter-Korean dialogue should be continued.<sup>10</sup>

<sup>9</sup> The statement by the CPRF spokesperson, December 15, 2015: "That the inter-Korean talks awaited in expectation and interest by all Korean people should have been broken off without any outcome is an inevitable consequence of the confrontational policy of South Korea, which does not want any sincere inter-Korean dialogue or improvement in inter-Korean relations."

<sup>10</sup> The Kyunghyang Shinmun, December 14, 2015: "The inter-Korean authorities' talks broke off: The momentum of inter-Korean dialogue should not be lost."

The Dong-A Ilbo, December 14, 2015: "North Korea harps only on the resumption of Mt. Geumgang tourism: The inter-Korean talks ended even without determining the next meeting."

Inter-Korean Military Dialogue

Chapter III. Inter-Korean Military Dialogue

1. Inter-Korean Military Authorities' Meeting (Oct. 15, 2014)

A. Overview

On October 7, 2014, three days after the Inter-Korean High-Level talks on the occasion of the closing ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games, a North Korean coast guard vessel crossed the Northern Limit Line (NLL). In response to warning shots from a South Korean vessel, the North Korean vessel fired back, and hostilities ensued. North Korea, which had committed the provocation, sent a written note to the South proposing an urgent meeting between the two Koreas. On the same day, through a written reply, South Korea clarified that North Korea should respect and observe the NLL. South Korea also said that relevant matters could be discussed during high-level meeting or military talks between the South and North. However, upon North Korea's repeated proposal for an urgent inter-Korean meeting on October 8, South Korea sent a written note to North Korea on October 10 proposing an Inter-Korean Military Authorities' Meeting at the Peace House in Panmunjeom on October 15. North Korea accepted this suggestion, and the Inter-Korean Military Meeting convened.

B. Progress of the Meeting

At the meeting, each side exchanged its respective position on the NLL of the West Sea and the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- For the improvement of inter-Korean relations, South Korea intends to build mutual trust between the South and North, which will lead to greater cooperation.
- North Korea illegally crossed the NLL on October 7, and perpetrated aggressive provocation against the activities of South Korean private organizations on October 10. These military provocations violated the armistice agreement and the Inter-Korean Basic Agreement.
- If North Korea truly wants improvement in inter-Korean relations, it should cease provocations immediately and observe the NLL.

Without giving any keynote speech, North Korea demanded not only a prohibition on South Korea's crossing North Korea's 'guard limit line' in the West Sea, but also the cessation of both anti-DPRK leaflet dissemination by South Korean private organizations and "slander" of North Korea.

The South emphasized that the skirmish in the West Sea occurred due to North Korea's crossing of the West Sea NLL, and stressed that it must be respected and observed. In addition, South Korea proposed the establishment of a hotline between South-North military authorities in order to prevent accidental conflicts and establish mutual trust.

Regarding North Korea's demand for the cessation of anti-DPRK leaflet dissemination by private organizations, South Korea reiterated that under its democratic system the activities of private organizations and the media could not be controlled.

The two sides having failed to narrow the gap in their positions, the meeting ended without any agreement.

Inter-Korean Military Authorities' Meeting (Oct. 15, 2014)

C. Results and Trends

On October 16, through the Korean Central News Agency (KCNA), North Korea disclosed the process and progress of the Inter-Korean Military Authorities' Meeting. The news article distorted the truth by asserting, "South Korea obstinately avoided discussions about our sincere proposals." At the same time, it claimed that "it has become unclear whether the Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting can be held as planned."

The South Korean government expressed displeasure at the distorted report of the inter-Korean meeting released by North Korea. South Korea strongly declared that North Korea should observe the West Sea NLL and that the South Korean government could not control the media or private organizations. The South also said that it sought to improve inter-Korean relations and ease tension through inter-Korean dialogue, and that it hoped the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting would be held as agreed.

The South Korean press reported, "At the meeting, only the divergent positions regarding anti-DPRK leaflets and the NLL between the two Koreas were confirmed,<sup>11</sup> and it was closed without any agreement." The media, however, also said, "A military meeting was held for the first time in three years and eight months, and the two sides clearly exchanged their opinions,"<sup>12</sup> and "it was a prelude to the Second Inter-Korean High-Level Meeting," and that "it represented a thawing in inter-Korean relations."<sup>13</sup>

Chapter IV. Inter-Korean Economic Dialogue

1. South-North Joint Committee Meetings for the GIC

A. The 5th Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC (Jun. 26, 2014)

1) Overview

For the purpose of discussing specific measures for the implementation of the agreement on the normalization of the GIC, the Fourth Meeting of the Joint Subcommittee for Commuting, Communications and Customs (the 3Cs) and the First Meeting for the Operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission were held on January 24 and on March 13, respectively.

However, due to North Korea's passive attitude, no significant results were achieved except for the pilot practice of unrestricted daily passage. Later, inter-Korean relations became strained due to North Korea's launching of missiles and the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations. North Korea also failed to respond to South Korea's proposal made on April 22 for the holding of an Inter-Korean Working-level Meeting regarding commuting and communications issues for the GIC.

The South Korean government promoted the holding of the Fifth

South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC to advance major pending issues related to the management and operation of the GIC, including the issue of implementation of the existing agreement on the 3Cs for the GIC after the normalization of the GIC.

South Korea explained the need for a South-North Joint Committee meeting for the GIC to North Korea through the Secretariat of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC. On June 9, the South sent a note from the South Korean Chair of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC and proposed the holding of the Fifth South-North Joint Committee meeting for the GIC on June 19 at the complex.

On June 23, North Korea sent a note from the North Korean Chair of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC and proposed a new date for the Fifth meeting, June 26. Accordingly, the Fifth South-North Joint Committee meeting for the GIC was held at the complex on June 26.

Head Delegate	Lee Kang-woo (Director General, Inter-Korean Cooperation District Policy Planning Directorate, MOU)	Park Chol-su (Vice General Director, General Bureau for the Central Guidance to the Development of the Special Zone:GDSZ)
Delegates	Lee Ju-tae (Secretary General, South Korean Secretariat of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC) Hong Jean-suk (Director, MOU) Heo Jin-bong (Director, MOU) Na Won-chang (Director, Ministry of Strategy and Finance: MOSF) Jeon Je-gu (Team Head, Ministry of Trade, Industry and Energy)	Ryu Chang-man (Office Head, GDSZ) Won Yong-hee (Department Head, GDSZ) Hwang Chung-seong (Councilor, National Economic Cooperation Committee) Yoon Seung-hyeon (Secretary General, North Korean Secretariat of the North-South Joint Committee for the GIC)

2) Progress of the Meeting

In its keynote speech at the Fifth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC, South Korea emphasized the importance of fulfilling the existing agreement between the South and North. In particular, South Korea urged the North to resolve commuting, communications and customs issues, including unrestricted daily passage and provision of Internet services, at the earliest possible date. In addition, South Korea demanded North Korea's faithful implementation of tax exemptions and the early operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission, both of which had been agreed upon in 2013, and proposed the holding of relevant subcommittee meetings.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- Implementing the agreement is essential for the progressive normalization of the GIC.
- South Korea's position with respect to this meeting is as follows:
  - Immediate implementation of unrestricted daily passage commencing in July and the supply of Internet services within the third quarter are necessary.
  - For the improvement of labor management and the wage system, a joint forum should be held, in which management committees, business leaders, workers' representatives, and professionals may participate.
  - The personal safety of individuals remaining in the GIC should be enhanced through the resumption of discussion concerning the annex agreement on entry, exit, and stay.
  - Discussions on how to attract foreign companies are needed in order to internationalize the GIC.
  - A Commercial Arbitration Commission meeting should be held as soon as possible to establish commercial arbitration regulations.
  - The agreement on tax exemption, reached in 2013 as compensation for the loss caused by the suspension of the GIC, should be adhered to.

However, the North avoided discussing issues raised by the South, while adhering to its existing position on labor wages, the labor-related system, and management of the GIC.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- Technical prerequisites for ensuring labor recruitment and improved conditions for entry and exit, and communications have already been met.
- North Korea raises the following issues for today's discussion:
  - New and additional investment in industrial districts; permission for normal economic transactions with local districts other than industrial districts.
  - Development of relevant systems, such as labor and taxation, that meet international standards.
  - The promotion of businesses best suited to the missions and duties of the North-South Joint Committee.

At the two meetings between the co-chairs of the joint committee from both South and North, North Korea maintained its stance. The Fifth Meeting thus ended without agreement. Both sides agreed to set future dates for the South-North Joint Committee and Subcommittee meetings through the Secretariat of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC.

The 5th Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC (Jun. 26, 2014)

3) Results and Trends

The South Korean media showed great interest in the Fifth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC, which was held following a strained period in inter-Korean relations. It reported the major issues of the meeting and the positions of the two sides in detail.<sup>14</sup> North Korea released a brief report on the Fifth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC through the Korean Central News Agency (KCNA, June 26, 2015).

B. The 6th Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC (Jul. 16, 2015)

1) Overview

After the Fifth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC, the South Korean government endeavored to bring about a subsequent meeting as soon as possible to discuss methods for the progressive normalization of the GIC, such as the practice of unrestricted daily passage and provision of Internet services. In this context, on July 4, 2014, the South sent a written note to North Korea through the Secretariat of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC to propose further meetings of the South-North Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs and the South-North Joint Subcommittee for Entry, Exit and Stay for the GIC.

However, North Korea did not respond to South Korea's proposal, and accordingly, the meetings of the South-North Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs and the South-North Joint Subcommittee for Entry, Exit and Stay for the GIC did not take place. Later, North Korea raised the issue of the dissemination of anti-DPRK leaflets by South Korean private organizations, further straining inter-Korean relations. Therefore, the meetings of the South-North Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs and the South-North Joint Subcommittee for Entry, Exit and Stay for the GIC did not take place in the second half of 2014.

On December 5, 2014, North Korea announced its unilateral amendment of the existing labor regulations, including deletion of the monthly minimum wage increase (5%) for North Korean workers in the GIC, of which step it informed South Korea of such on December 8.

On December 10, the South Korean government pointed out that North Korea's unilateral revision of the labor regulations violated the existing agreement on the progressive normalization of the GIC, conflicted with the GIC Law of North Korea, and undermined the stability of the GIC, thus undermining the credibility of the entire GIC system. In addition, South Korea stressed that changes in the GIC wage system should be resolved through inter-Korean discussions, such as the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC, as stipulated in the Agreement for the Normalization of the GIC (August 14, 2013).

On December 16, 2014, the South Korean government attempted to deliver a written note to North Korea, stressing that North Korea's unilateral amendment of the labor regulations constituted a violation of its agreement with the South. However, North Korea refused to accept the note, maintaining that the revision of the labor regulations was a matter of sovereignty.

On February 26, 2015, the South Korean government suggested the holding of the Sixth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC on March 13 to resolve pending issues related to the GIC, including the issue of North Korean labor wages. However, North Korea neither expressed any position nor responded to South Korea's proposal.

South Korea continuously urged North Korea to agree to hold an inter-Korean meeting. Finally, North Korea responded, and the Sixth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC took place at the GIC Support Center on July 16.

2) Progress of the Meeting

South and North Korea discussed, in a total of five rounds of meetings (one plenary meeting and four co-chair meetings), pending issues related to the GIC, such as the practice of unrestricted daily passage, provision of Internet services, and North Korean labor wages.

At the meeting, the South presented improvement of commuting, communications and customs issues, advancement of the labor wage system, and renovation of the commuting and South-North connecting roads as major pending issues, and urged North Korea to respond in a positive manner.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- South Korea declared its ideas and plans for the progressive normalization of the GIC.
  - Freedom of enterprise business activities should be ensured to enhance GIC competitiveness.
  - Commuting, communications and customs, guarantee of personal safety, taxes and accounting systems, and various infrastructure including the commuting road should be improved.
- South Korea's stance on pending issues is as follows:
  - The labor wage system should be improved in a direction consistent with the progressive normalization of the GIC.
  - 3Cs(commuting, communications and customs) systems should be improved without delay.
  - An annex agreement on entry, exit, and stay should be concluded, and the South-North Commercial Arbitration Commission for the GIC should begin operation without delay.
  - Cooperation is necessary for the improvement of working conditions and the GIC infrastructure, such as renovation of the commuting road.
- South Korea expects the South-North Joint Committee and Subcommittee meetings to be held on a regular basis in order to discuss and resolve pending issues related to the GIC.

The North showed interest in the renovation of infrastructure, such as the commuting road, but adhered to its existing position on the labor wage issue, calling it a matter of sovereignty. North Korea also avoided discussing methods for the progressive normalization of the GIC, such as the improvement of commuting, communications and customs.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- North Korea presented its view on difficulties arising from the activation of the GIC.
  - Measures for the resolution of the labor shortage problems facing tenant companies should be established.
  - The issue of the construction and renovation of the commuting road should be resolved.
  - Institutional restrictions that hinder activation of the industrial district project should be eliminated.

Through four rounds of meetings between the co-chairs from both South and North held after the plenary meeting, South Korea attempted to progress discussions by assuming a flexible position regarding North Korea's interests, including the wage issue. However, the North did not respond to the improvement of the commuting, communications and customs issues, and thus, the Sixth South-North Joint Committee Meeting for the GIC was adjourned without any specific agreement.

South Korea proposed a subsequent meeting to discuss pending issues related to the GIC that had been accumulating, but North Korea insisted that further meetings would be meaningless unless South Korea accepted its demands. Therefore, the two parties were unable to reach an agreement on a subsequent meeting.

the facilitation of commuting, communications and customs in the GIC, according to the Agreement on the Establishment and Operation of the South-North Joint Committee for the GIC. Three meetings were held in 2013, and the restoration of the West Sea military communication lines and the installation of the electronic entry system (RFID) for unrestricted daily passage were agreed upon.

On January 24, 2014, the Fourth Meeting of the Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs was held to advance the issues of GIC commuting, communications and customs, which had been discussed since the resumption of the GIC.

B. Progress of Meeting

In its delegation's keynote speech at the Fourth Meeting of the Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs for the GIC, the South stressed the importance of the resolution of GIC commuting, communications and customs issues. South Korea also defined its specific position with respect to the pilot practice of unrestricted daily passage, introduction of 50% customs sampling inspection, and discussion of technical issues related to Internet services.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- For the improvement of the GIC, the issues of commuting, communications and customs are the ones in most urgent need of resolution.
- South Korea declared its basic position for this meeting as follows.
  - Commuting: Unrestricted daily passage should be implemented around Lunar New Year's Day, on January 28.
  - Communications: Technical issues related to Internet services should be discussed.
  - Customs: Invasive inspection of personal belongings should be minimized and customs sampling inspection (50% document inspection) should be adopted.

In its keynote speech, the North agreed with South Korea's view regarding improvement of the commuting, communications and customs system. However, North Korea was passive in regard to the discussion of specific matters, and strongly demanded materials and equipment.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- North Korea suggests that the two Koreas strive to improve the commuting, communications and customs system, placing value even on small achievements.
- North Korea posits the following opinions regarding the improvement of the commuting, communications and customs system.
  - Commuting: Installment of an electronic entry system cannot necessarily guarantee smooth passage.
  - Communications: Materials that can ensure normal operation of military communications should be provided.
  - Customs: In order to meet South Korea's demand for customs sampling inspection, updated equipment is needed.

After the plenary meeting, South and North Korea discussed the details through sectoral meetings and co-chair meetings. Both sides agreed to practice unrestricted daily passage commencing January 28 immediately after a technical inspection, and to continue discussing the communications issue through subsequent working-level discussions on February 7.

The 4th Meeting of the Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs
(Jan. 24, 2014)

On February 7, as a follow-up to the Fourth Meeting of the Joint Subcommittee for the 3Cs, a working-level discussion concerning communications took place, at which agreement was reached on major issues related to Internet services (configuration, paths, and authentication of Internet network). The pilot operation of unrestricted daily passage commenced on January 28 after completion of technical inspection, but was suspended on May 16 due to North Korea's unilateral severance of the communications network.

3. The 1st Meeting for the Operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission (Mar. 13, 2014)

A. Overview

On September 11, 2013, in order to preserve the investments of Korean companies in the GIC, the South and North signed the Annex Agreement for the implementation of the “Agreement on the Establishment and Operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission” for the GIC. In accordance with the agreement, the two Koreas notified each other in December of their respective committee members and completed the establishment of the Commercial Arbitration Commission for the GIC.

On March 7, 2014, the South sent a list of experts (30 lawyers, professors, and businessmen) who will be responsible for arbitration judgments regarding future disputes and proposed inter-Korean discussion for the functioning of the Commercial Arbitration Commission. Accordingly, the First Meeting for the Operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission was held on March 13 at the GIC.

List of South and North Korean Delegates

B. Progress of the Meeting

At the First Meeting for the Operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission for the GIC, South and North Korea discussed arbitration regulations that would be applied when the arbitration commission commenced operations. The South presented a draft on arbitration regulations and explained its stance on the jurisdiction and operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission for the GIC.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- Preparing the means to develop the GIC into an international industrial complex and resolve disputes fairly and quickly is most crucial.
- South Korea suggests that inter-Korean discussions about arbitration procedures, and construction and operation of the Commercial Arbitration Commission be held, taking into account agreements and regulations between the South and North and international regulations.

The North defined its stance on the jurisdiction, qualification of disputing parties, and other major concepts of the Commercial Arbitration Commission.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- Since there are differences in the legal system between the South and North, there are many general and practical issues to be discussed through the Commercial Arbitration Commission.
  - General understanding and concepts of commercial arbitrations
  - Jurisdiction of the commission over possible commercial disputes in the GIC
  - Qualification of a disputing party

Although South and North Korea were not able to reach agreement, they agreed on the significance and necessity for a commercial arbitration system. They also agreed to continue discussing issues of conflict between the two parties, but later North Korea did not respond to the proposal for further discussion and, accordingly, no subsequent discussion took place.

Inter-Korean Humanitarian and Sociocultural Dialogue

Chapter V. Inter-Korean Humanitarian and Sociocultural Dialogue

1. Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-Level Meeting (Feb. 5, 2014)

A. Overview

On January 6, 2014, President Park Geun-hye of South Korea said, in the context of her New Year's plan, "It was a shame that a reunion for separated families was suddenly canceled four days prior to the scheduled reunion last year." She emphasized that new momentum should be created in inter-Korean relations to enable a reunion of separated families on the occasion of Seollal (Lunar New Year's Day).

The same day, the South Korean government sent a written note from the president of the Korean Red Cross proposing an Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting for a Seollal reunion of separated families.

On January 9, in a written note released by the CPRF Secretariat, North Korea rejected this proposal for a working-level meeting. However, it left open the possibility of holding one in the future, saying that 'if South Korea was willing to discuss issues raised by North Korea, the two parties could meet again at a more appropriate time.'

Through a statement issued by a CPRF spokesperson on January 15, 2014 and a crucial proposal by the National Defense Commission on January 16, North Korea demanded the cessation of both ROK-US joint military exercises and mutual slander. On January 24, the North also sent a written note from the Chair of the Central Committee of the DPRK Red Cross Society proposing a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Seollal. Considering that there were not many days remaining, the South suggested a modified working-level meeting date (January 29, 2014).

Later, following bilateral correspondence, the two Koreas agreed on an Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting scheduled for February 5. Accordingly, the Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting was held at Tongilgak in Panmunjeom on February 5, 2014.

List of South and North Korean Delegates

Classification	South Korean Delegation	North Korean Delegation
Head Delegate	Lee Deok-haeng (Committee Executive Member, Korean Red Cross)	Park Yong-il (Chief Member, Central Committee, DPRK Red Cross Society)

B. Progress of the Meeting

At the Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting, the South expressed discontent with North Korea's breach of the agreement regarding a reunion for separated families that had been reached in August 2013, stressing that agreements between the South and North should be respected and observed.

With respect to the scheduling of a reunion for separated families, South Korea, taking into account the cancellation of a reunion in 2013, pressed to have it held without delay. South Korea suggested holding it from February 17 to 22 at Mt. Geumgang. It also emphasized the need for safety inspections of relevant facilities, including accommodations.

South Korea acknowledged the importance of reaching an agreement on the upcoming reunion, but prioritized the urgency of a fundamental solution for elderly separated family members, since they have waited for the past 50 years. In this context, South Korea declared the necessity of regular reunions for separated families, comprehensive confirmation of the status (whether living or deceased) as well as of the addresses of separated family members, and the exchange of correspondence.

In addition, the South also demanded discussions in good faith on South Korean prisoners of war and abductees.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- The cancellation of the reunion for separated families agreed upon last year was a great disappointment for separated families. Agreements between the South and North must be respected and observed.
- The canceled reunion for separated families should be rescheduled and held as soon as possible.
  - The reunion for separated families should be held at Mt. Geumgang from February 17 to 22.
  - Inspection teams should be dispatched from February 7 for the inspection of facilities, including accommodations.
- Finding a fundamental solution for separated families is urgent, and the issues of South Korean prisoners of war and abductees should also be discussed in good faith.

The North proposed that practical issues related to the reunion for separated families be based on the agreement reached in 2013 and that the reunion be held from February 20 to 25. North Korea also proposed that 100 individuals from each side participate as planned in 2013 and that an advance team be dispatched five days prior to the reunion.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- Practical issues related to the reunion for separated families should be based on the agreement reached last year. North Korea suggests discussions regarding the specific date, changes in the number of individuals participating in the reunion, and the advance team.
- The reunion for separated families should be held from February 20 to 25.
- Based on the existing agreement, 100 individuals from each side should participate in the reunion. However, one guardian may be added if necessary.
- Accommodations for South Korean participants should ensure the comfort of guests as much as possible, and an advance team should be dispatched five days prior to the reunion.

Through two rounds of plenary meetings and three rounds of head delegate meetings, the two Koreas agreed to have a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Seollal.

The agreement called for the inclusion of 100 individuals from each side at Mt. Geumgang from February 20 to 25. In addition, the two Koreas also concurred on holding another Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting, to take place after the completion of the reunion for separated families, in order to continue discussions on humanitarian issues.

Immediately after the Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting, through a statement issued by the spokesperson for the Policy Bureau of the National Defense Commission on February 6, North Korea announced the possibility of cancellation of the reunion for separated families. At the Inter-Korean High-level Meeting held from February 12 and 14, 2014, South Korea adhered to its position that purely humanitarian issues and military issues were to be kept separate. North Korea acquiesced, and the Seollal reunion for separated families was agreed to be held as planned.

It took place at Mt. Geumgang from February 20 to 25, according to schedule. After the reunion, the South sent a written note from the president of the Korean Red Cross, proposing an Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting to discuss humanitarian issues. However, North Korea rejected the proposal on the grounds that the current conditions lacked the appropriate atmosphere.

Summary of Agreement

- The reunion for separated families on the occasion of Seollal will be held.
  - The reunion will be held at Mt Geumgang from February 20 to 25, and 100 individuals from each side will participate.
  - The participants of the reunion will be those individuals included in the list exchanged between the two parties last September. A guardian may accompany if necessary.
  - The group reunion will take place at the Reunion Center and Mt. Geumgang Hotel. Accommodations will be provided at Mt. Geumgang Hotel and Oegemgang Hotel.
  - An advance team will be dispatched five days prior to the reunion.
  - For on-site inspection of the reunion venue, South Korea will dispatch inspection teams from February 7 and their convenience will be ensured.
- The South and North agree to continue discussing humanitarian issues through an Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting after the reunion for separated families.

Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-Level Meeting (Feb. 5, 2014)

C. Results and Trends

The South Korean media reported that a reunion for separated families took place, three years and four months after the preceding reunion in October 2010, in accordance with the agreement reached at the Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting. In particular, the media reported positively on the fact that the two parties reached an agreement within four hours without experiencing any significant conflict unlike previous meetings.<sup>16</sup>

Meanwhile, North Korea briefly reported on the Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting and the content of its agreement through the KCNA (February 5).

2. Inter-Korean Working-Level Meeting for the Incheon Asian Games (Jul. 17, 2014)

A. Overview

On May 23, 2014, North Korea officially notified the Olympic Council of Asia (OCA) of its intention to participate in the 17th Incheon Asian Games. Later, at the OCA Conference held in Kuwait from June 28 to 29, the chairman of the North Korean Olympic Committee met the president of the Incheon Asian Games Organizing Committee (IAGOC) and verbally proposed Inter-Korean Working-level Talks in July to discuss North Korea's participation in the Incheon Asian Games. On July 7, through a 'government statement,' North Korea announced that it would dispatch a cheering squad to the Asian Games. On July 10, North Korea sent a letter signed by the chairman of the North Korean Olympic Committee to South Korea and proposed a working-level meeting on July 15.

Through a letter signed by the president of the IAGOC, the South suggested changing the date of the meeting to July 17, a proposal the North accepted. Accordingly, an Inter-Korean Working-level Meeting was held at the Peace House in Panmunjeom on July 17 to discuss North Korea's participation in the 17th Incheon Asian Games.

B. Progress of the Meeting

At the morning session of the first plenary meeting, South Korea proposed that practical issues, including the size of the North Korean team and the dispatch of a cheering squad, be determined as soon as possible. In addition, the South also suggested a frank and broad discussion about North Korea's participation in the Asian Games, pointing out that it was a working-level meeting. South Korea defined its position regarding issues with respect to the participation of North Korea's team and cheering squad.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- The two Koreas should discuss specific matters related to North Korea's participation in the Games, including the specific sports involved, team size, access routes, and dispatch of a cheering squad.
- It is desirable that matters related to the participation of the North Korean team and its cheering squad in the Games adhere to international provisions and Games regulations.

In response, North Korea informed South Korea that the size of its team and cheering squad would be 350 members each. North Korea also expressed its position and requested that the South provide for the local training of its team and be accommodating to its cheering squad.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- The North Korean team will be composed of 350 athletes, coaches, referees, reporters, and officials. It will fly to South Korea via the West Sea direct line.
- Each Korean team will play as a separate team, and use the name, national flag and national anthem of its own country at award ceremonies.
- The cheering squad will be composed of 350 individuals. It will travel via the West Sea land route. The South is expected to be accommodating to the cheering squad.

At the second plenary meeting held in the afternoon, South Korea described its basic position on the issues raised by North Korea. It also requested that the North provide a clear and specific explanation of the size of its team and cheering squad.

In response, at the third plenary meeting held in the afternoon, North Korea unilaterally declared a rupture of the meeting and left, faulting South Korea's attitude. The working-level meeting thus ended without result.

Although no agreement was reached at the meeting, on August 19, North Korea dispatched its delegation to the drawing ceremony of the Incheon Asian Games (August 21) and suggested discussing the North Korean team's participation via documents. South Korea accepted this suggestion. Later, both sides discussed the participation of the North Korean team through the liaison channel at Panmunjeom. They agreed on the size of the team, the access routes, and the need for the team to be well-accommodated. Accordingly, its participation in the Incheon Asian Games was settled.

Inter-Korean Working-Level Meeting for the Incheon Asian Games
(Jul. 17, 2014)

C. Results and Trends

Responding to the Inter-Korean Working-level Meeting for the Incheon Asian Games, the South Korean media released news focusing on the facts.<sup>17</sup> Through various media and other channels, North Korea disclosed the content of the meeting. While criticizing the South, the North continuously expressed its intention to participate in the Games.

North Korea dispatched athletes and staffers totaling 273 to the 17th Incheon Asian Games. In the medal rankings, North Korea came 7th. It also dispatched high-ranking officials to the closing ceremony of the Games. National and international media showed great interest in their visit, and reflected on its potential impact on the future of inter-Korean relations.

3. Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-Level Meeting (Sep. 7~8, 2015)

A. Overview

Pursuant to the ‘agreement made on August 25’ between inter-Korean high-level authorities, on August 28, the South sent a written note from the president of the Korean Red Cross proposing an Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting on September 7 to discuss the separated families issue, including a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok (Korean Thanksgiving Day). North Korea accepted this proposal on August 29, and an Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting was held at the Peace House in Panmunjeom from September 7 to 8.

List of South and North Korean Delegates

B. Progress of the Meeting

At the meeting, South Korea emphasized that the advanced age of separated family members made a fundamental solution to the separated families especially urgent. For comprehensive confirmation of relatives’ status (living or deceased) and addresses, South Korea suggested that South and North Korean Red Cross exchange the full list of separated families of each side within 2015. In addition, South Korea also stressed the need for a comprehensive exchange of correspondence and regular reunions for separated families.

Regarding the upcoming reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok, South Korea suggested successive visits to Seoul and then Pyongyang from October 4 to 9. In addition, it proposed that 100 individuals participate in the reunion from each side as planned, but the number of accompanying guardians be increased from one to two, in view of the advanced age of separated family members. It also raised the issues of South Korean prisoners of war, abductees, and detainees and insisted on relevant discussions between the South and North.

Summary of South Korea's Keynote Speech

- Fundamental solutions for the separated families issue.
  - Each side should create and exchange a comprehensive list of separated families and with each other within the current year.
  - The exchange of correspondence should be expanded, and video messaging is also needed.
  - Regular reunions are necessary, and the visit of hometowns and family graves should also be promoted.
  - The two parties should strive for the fundamental resolution of the issue of persons who went missing during and after the war.
- The reunion of separated families on the occasion of Chuseok.
  - South Korea suggests successive visits to Seoul and Pyongyang from October 4 to 9.
  - South Korea suggests that a minimum of 100 individuals from each side participate, and that the target number for the confirmation of status (whether living or deceased) be increased from 250 to 300.
  - Considering the advanced age of most separated family members, the number of accompanying guardians should be increased.
  - Issues related to the dispatch of an advance party and facility inspection teams should be discussed in accordance with previously established guidelines.

The North agreed with South Korea's view of the need for a solution for the separated families issue, but also argued that, according to the agreement reached at the Inter-Korean High-Level Authorities' Meeting, the Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-level Meeting should focus on practical issues related to the reunion for separated families. North Korea proposed that the reunion be held at Mt. Geumgang from October 20 to 26, and that an advance team be dispatched five days prior to the reunion.

Summary of North Korea's Keynote Speech

- The reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok should be held from October 20 to 26.
- The number of participants in and candidates for the reunion should be 100 and 200 for each side, respectively.
- Since the separated family members are in their declining years, one accompanying guardian is permissible if necessary.
- The locations of the reunion should be the Reunion Center at Mt. Geumgang and the Mt. Geumgang Hotel.
- An advance team should be dispatched five days prior to the reunion.

Through 2 rounds of plenary meetings and 11 rounds of head delegate meetings held from September 7 to 8, South and North Korea agreed to hold a reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok and to continue discussing fundamental solutions to humanitarian issues.

Inter-Korean Red Cross Working-Level Meeting (Sep. 7~8, 2015)

Besides holding the reunion for separated families, the two Koreas also agreed to find fundamental solutions for humanitarian issues. The South and North agreed to hold inter-Korean Red Cross talks in the near future to broadly discuss mutual interests.

As agreed upon, the reunion for separated families took place at Mt. Geumgang from October 20 to 26. A total of 972 individuals in 186 families from the two parties were briefly reunited through this family reunion.

Summary of Agreement

- The reunion for separated families on the occasion of Chuseok will be held.
  - The reunion for separated families will be held at Mt. Geumgang from October 20 to 26.
  - The number of participants will be 100 for each side, and one or two accompanying family members are permitted for those participants with mobility difficulties.
  - The two Koreas will exchange requests for the confirmation of status, i.e., whether living or deceased (September 15), written replies (October 5), and final lists (October 8). The target number for relatives whose status (whether living or deceased) is to be confirmed will be 250 for the South and 200 for the North.
  - Other practical issues, including the reunion protocol and the dispatch of an advance party, will be discussed following previously established guidelines.
- The South and North agreed to devise fundamental solutions for humanitarian issues.
  - The two Koreas agreed to have inter-Korean Red Cross talks in the near future to discuss broad issues related to future reunions for separated families and other mutual interests.

C. Results and Trends

The South Korean press highlighted the significance of scheduling the first reunion for separated families to take place since February 2014, after a hiatus of one year and eight months. In particular, it stressed that this agreement with the North was the first obtained since the ‘agreement on August 25.’<sup>18</sup>
